St. Pierre
Survivors

Some of Them Reach St. Lucia and Give Particulars of Disaster.

Other Places as Well as Martinique Have Direful Experience.

Black Darkness Prevalled and Eruption Killed Numbers of People.

Castries, St. Lucia, B. W. I., May 10.—Mount Pelee, a volcanic mountain some ten miles north of St. Pierre, the commercial capital of Martinique, is the mountain which made a faint show of eruption 50 years ago. On May 3 last it began to throw out dense clouds of smoke. At midnight the same day flames, accompanied with rumbling noises, lighted the sky over an immense area, causing widespread terror. May 4, hot ashes covered the whole city quarter of St. Pierre in inch thick, and made Mount Pelee invisible. At noon May 5, a stream of burning lava rushed 400 feet down the mountainside, following the dry bed of a torrent, and reaching the sea five miles from the mountain, in three minutes. In its rush the fiery flood swept from its path plantations, buildings, factories, cattle and human beings of a breadth of about a half a mile. At the rear of the mouth of the Riviere Blanche stood the large Guerin sugar factory, one of the largest in the island. It is now completely entombed in lava. The tall chimney alone is visible.

One hundred and fifty persons are estimated to have perished there, including the owners. The lava rushed into the sea, the latter receding 400 feet, returning with greater strength, a big wave covered the whole sea front of St. Pierre, but doing little damage ashore or afloat. Terrible detonations heard hundreds of miles northward, followed at short intervals in the intense darkness the electric light failed, but the town was lit up by lurid flashes of flame from the mountain. The terror stricken inhabitants rushed for the hills in their night clothes, screaming and shouting, mad with terror.

The Pissone family escaped to St. Lucia in a small steamer; 35 persons, mostly women and children arrived here in the forenoon of the 6th and furnished the above details. The men remained at Martinique until the same afternoon, telegraph communication was interrupted with both the islands of Martinique and St. Vincent. During the afternoon of the 8th, the British steamer Roddam, which had left St. Lucia at last night, arrived off St. Pierre at 8 a.m., in fine weather, succeeding an awful thunder storm during the night, he was talking to the ship's agent, Joseph Pissone, who was in a boat alongside, when a tremendous cloud of smoke and blowing clouds rushing with terrific rapidity over the town and port, completely in an instant enveloping the former in a sheet of flame and raining on board. The agent had just time to climb on board when his boat disappeared. Several of the crew of the Roddam were quickly scorched to death. By superhuman efforts and having steam up, the cable was slipped and the steamer backed away from the shore and nine hours later managed to reach Castries. Ten of the Roddam's men were lying dead, burned out of human semblance among the black cinders which covered the ship's deck to a depth of six inches. Two more of the crew have since died. The survivors of the Roddam's crew were found in their place of the heroic conduct of their captain in steering his vessel out of danger with his own hands, which were badly burned by the rain of fire which kept falling on the ship for miles after she got under way. Beyond burns, all over his body, the captain is safe, he is also the ship's agent, though he is badly scorched. Mr. Pissone is believed here to be the sole survivor of the 40,000 inhabitants of St. Pierre, who remained in the town and all the shipping in the port has been utterly destroyed.

The British royal mail steamer Esk, which called off Martinique at 10 p.m. last night, reports standing off shore five miles, sounding her whistle and sending up rockets. She received no answer. The whole sea front was blazing for miles. The Esk sent a boat ashore, but it could not land on account of the terrible heat, which was accompanied by loud explosions. Not a living soul appeared ashore after the boat had waited for two hours. Fire and ashes fell all over the steamer.

Point a Pitre, Guadeloupe, May 10.—The morning of May 5, Guadeloupe learned that the Mount Pelee volcano in Martinique had been in a state of eruption since Saturday, May 3, throwing out a heavy smoke. Tuesday a very heavy storm occurred and loud detonations were heard. At noon came a rumor that lava was flowing from Mount Pelee, and that 300 lives had been lost at St. Pierre. All that day were heard loud noises, like the discharge of heavy artillery, far off. It is now known that these noises were from the Martinique volcano. In the afternoon the cable connections with Martinique all disappeared. A very heavy thunder storm then broke over Guadeloupe, and lasted for a considerable time and rumors were current that the Soufriere volcano in Guadeloupe was more active. The earth was trembling at Basseterre and volcanic rumblings were heard.

are closed and the flags are at half-mast. The mountains of Guadeloupe are clouded in darkness and frequent heavy storms continue. People are on the edge with anxiety fearing that La Soufriere may become active. A light earthquake or a slight increase in the usual smoking of La Soufriere would precipitate a panic here. It is believed that there is no longer any danger.

Point a Pitre, May 9.—The Quebec line steamship Korona arrived at the island of Dominica yesterday, bringing a number of survivors from her sister ship, the Koraima. The captain of the Korona says that the eruption at St. Pierre was apparently from a new crater, and that accompanying the eruption there seemed to be a tidal wave, which overwhelmed the shipping.

A message from the island of St. Vincent says: "The Soufriere has been in a state of eruption for nine consecutive mornings. On Thursday morning the day broke with heavy thunder and lightning, which soon changed into a continuous roar. Vast columns of smoke rose over the mountain, becoming denser and denser, and the scoria-like hail, changing later to fine dust, fell upon all the adjacent estates, destroying a vast amount of property."

At Chateau Belaire ashes were two feet deep. In Kingstown they were fully an inch deep, and many large stones fell in the parish of Georgetown. The earth shook violently, and at 4 o'clock in the afternoon a night-like darkness spread over the country. Thirty people are known to have been killed and the damage to property in the Windward district was very heavy. The storm raged about Soufriere all night without cessation, but on the following morning it became intermittent and fainter.

A report from Barbadoes says that on the 7th the sky was heavily overcast. The heat was excessive, and there was a distant sound of thunder. Later, early in the afternoon, dense darkness set in, and a great quantity of dust fell and continued falling until a late hour. No damage is reported.

Port de France, Martinique, May 10.—Hopes are raised that more of the population of St. Pierre than had been indicated have been saved. It is believed that a number of people were rescued from the stricken town by steamers running to Port de France.

The work of clearing away the debris in the city of St. Pierre has already begun, and even now some semblance of order has been restored. The smoking ruins have been partially cleared, and it has been agreed by the municipal and other authorities to burn all corpses found in the streets. The authorities of Port de France are sending all necessities for sufferers and medical aid for the injured, the food supplies of St. Pierre being all destroyed. The cruiser Sachet is re-victualing Martinique from Guadeloupe.

Paris, May 10.—At a meeting of the French cabinet this morning the minister of finance, M. Caillaux, was authorized to expend the money necessary to succor the sufferers by the Martinique disaster. An official of the Colonial office sailed from Brest for Martinique this morning with half a million francs in cash. M. de Crais informed the cabinet meeting that Senator Knight (president of the legislature of Martinique, who was believed to have lost his life at St. Pierre), had escaped La Patrie says the wife of Senator Knight has received a cablegram from her husband dated Port de France, Martinique, at 3 p.m., yesterday, saying: "Well, properly safe."

The despatch also said that Morné Rouze was spared. Morné Rouze is a beautiful resort between the city of St. Pierre and the crater of Mount Pelee. During the hot summer weather it is inhabited by the people of Martinique as a place of recreation. At this period of the year the residents number about 800.

Washington, May 10.—Secretary of the Navy Moody has called the commander of the cruiser Chelminati, now at San Domingo city, to proceed to Martinique and render such aid as is possible.

A Great
Life Gone

Principal Grant of Kingston Dies After a Long and Painful Illness.

Canada Has Lost One of Her Most Gifted and Loyal Sons.

In Religious Educational and National Life He Was in Forefront.

Kingston, Ont., May 10.—Rev. Dr. Grant, principal of Queen's university, died somewhat suddenly at 11:10 this morning, of oedema of the lungs. Yesterday and all last night the patient seemed to be in a fair way of recovery. A bad turn came on this morning and the patient sank rapidly. His end was calm. He was conscious within an hour of death, recognizing those at his side. These were W. B. Grant, M.A., his son; Mrs. Field, his sister-in-law, and Miss Field, and his medical men. The funeral is fixed for Tuesday.

The Very Rev. George Monro Grant, M. A., D. D., LL. D., C. M. G., principal and vice-chancellor of Queen's University, Kingston, has for many years been one of the foremost figures in Canadian religious, educational and national life. Born at Albion Mines, Nova Scotia, on December 22, 1835, he was educated at the Presbyterian academy at the West River Seminary of the Presbyterian church, and in 1853 received a bursary that entitled him to a course at the University of Glasgow, where his college career was exceptionally brilliant. He was first in classics, moral philosophy and chemistry, and carried off the Lord Rector's prize for the best essay on Hindu literature and philosophy.

Ordained to the ministry in November, 1859, he returned to Canada and in the following year was appointed a missionary in Pictou county. He was soon afterwards sent to Georgetown, P. E. I., and in May, 1863, accepted the pastorate of St. Matthews church, Halifax, where he remained fourteen years. While in Halifax he was a director of Dalhousie college, a trustee of the Theological Seminary, and took an active and prominent part in various benevolent societies. He was a zealous advocate of the union of the Presbyterians of Nova Scotia, and when this was accomplished he, as moderator of the Kirk Synod, subscribed to the articles in its name.

In 1872 he accompanied Sir Sandford Grant, in his celebrated journey overland to British Columbia, and a result published in 1873 "Ocean to Ocean," a work which has passed through several editions, and is still read with interest by old and young. This was the commencement of a line of authorship which he has since often followed.

In 1877 he became principal of Queen's college, Kingston, and as owing to the withdrawal of the government grant from the university the finances of the institution were in a depressed state at the time of his election, he was called to work to raise an endowment fund, and succeeded in collecting the sum of $150,000, to which he has added at different times since a very large amount. He held the office of the liberal school of thought in the Presbyterian church, the meaning of which is that while he adhered to the cardinal doctrines of the gospel, he desired to give the utmost freedom to individual thought and opinion within the limits of the fundamental basis of the church. His ideal was to see a federation of the great Protestant churches.

In Nova Scotia he gave his support to those who advocated and carried the free school system, and the Confederation of Canada into one great Dominion. Since then he was in the fore front of the movement to inculcate a true Canadian sentiment, and the promotion of the relations between the colonies and the mother land. He was singularly free and independent in his utterances on public questions, unimpaired whether his views were unpopular so long as he considered them right and true.

In addition to "Ocean to Ocean" he published many works on religious and other subjects such as "Advantages of Imperial Federation," "Our National Objects and Aims," "The Religions of the World," He also edited "Pictorial Canada," and has written frequently for English, Canadian and United States magazines.

In 1888 he made a tour round the world lecturing in Australia and other places on the way. He has held the position of moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church in Canada, president of the Imperial Federation League; president of the Royal Society of Canada; honorary vice-president of the "Boys' Brigade" chaplain to the 47th Regiment of Canadian Militia; was a delegate to the Pan Presbyterian council, and received honorary degrees from various universities.

During the visit of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York to Canada last year, Dr. Grant was just recovering from an attack of the trouble of which he had been long and severely afflicted, and a special visit to the patient was paid by the Duke and Duchess.

Honored and respected by all who knew him, he passes from the scene, one of the greatest figures in Canadian life, a true Canadian, and a loyal subject of the great Empire for which he did such grand work.

BOMBARDMENT OF CARUPANO

Government Defeated With Heavy Losses in Land and Sea Fight.

Port of Spain, Island of Trinidad, May 8 (Thursday).—Venezuelan government troops, under Gen. Vicente Gomez, attacked Carupano, state of Bermudez, Venezuela, by land and by sea, with the gunboats Restaurador, Agostino and Sumador, but the port is still in the hands of the revolutionists. After a seven-hours battle the government forces were defeated and obliged to abandon the fight, leaving 115 men dead and 210 wounded. The city suffered terribly from the shelling of the government war vessels, which, with the remainder of Gen. Gomez's troops, escaped on board the gunboats and reached Cumana. Gomez was wounded. Carupano now presents a spectacle of desolation. The cable is cut.

THE TOURIST ASSOCIATION

Many Important Matters Discussed at the Regular Meeting.

The Executive committee of the Tourist association held their regular weekly meeting at the association rooms, No. 34 Fort street, last night. Very encouraging reports were received from the traveling representative, Mr. Herbert Cutbert, from Portland and San Francisco. The result of his visit to Portland has been the awakening of a lively interest in the work of the association in the commercial metropolis of Oregon, the business men, like those of Tacoma and Seattle, recognizing that the attraction of tourist travel to Victoria must necessarily benefit their city, as it stands on one of the main arteries of railway access from the south and southeast. The Oregonian, the most influential newspaper in the Pacific northwest, had many kind words for Victoria consequent upon Mr. Cutbert's visit and he was assured by the business men of the city of their hearty co-operation in the objects of the association. Mr. Cutbert is now in Los Angeles and from there he will work northward, arriving at Portland about the 17th.

Taking advantage of his opportune arrival at Portland it was suggested that the committee in charge of Victoria Day celebration might forward advertising matter to Mr. Cutbert at Portland, the association instructing him to have it distributed in that city and in Tacoma and Seattle.

Mr. Bickford attended the meeting as a representative of the Victoria Gun club to confer with the executive on the subject of game protection. It was decided to urge upon the government the strict enforcement of the game law and measures were adopted, which will make it decidedly unpleasant for pot hunters, pending the action of the authorities. A special committee was appointed to arrange for the establishment of conveniences for sea bathing on Victoria Arm or some other suitable place.

The members of the Fifth Regiment band having generously offered to give a concert in aid of the funds of the association, their proposition was accepted with thanks. The band made an alternative offer, either that they should, individually, pay the fee of $1 and become members of the association, or give a concert, the receipts for which should go to qualify them for membership. The meeting unanimously accepted the latter proposition, and the concert will be given next Saturday night at the Drill Hall. The executive will co-operate with the band to make the affair a signal success and it is hoped that the citizens will show their appreciation of the band's good will by turning out in large numbers.

It was also decided to keep the association open in the evenings for the accommodation of visitors and the public generally. A smart, active boy of 14 or 15 will be employed to attend at the rooms and distribute descriptive printed matter to arrivals by the different steamers. Applicants for the position are asked to call at Mr. A. B. Fraser's office, corner of Bastion and Water street, on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock.

A favorable answer was received from James Dunsinville in answer to the suggestion that a guide be appointed to the Parliament buildings.

Harsh punitive remedies are fast giving way to the gentle action and good effects of Carter's Liver Pills. If you try them you will certainly praise you.

BREAKING THE ICE.
The youthful hope of the family, aged eight, ran away from home directly after lunch. At nightfall he was found under a hedge, fast asleep, and brought back by a neighbor. The family, consisting of the father and mother, were at dinner when the prodigal returned, but in order the more effectively to punish him, he was entirely during the progress of the meal. The little one ate his dinner in uneasy silence, eating his parents' food, and from time to time, dinner over the mother took up some sewing and went on with it, saying a word to the child. The culprit, who had remained obstinately voiceless since his return, saw he must break the ice, and cast about him in his mind for a way that should at once be effectual and carry with it a proper rebuke to his unfeeling parents.

The boy, putting in front of the fire, gave him an idea, and in the voice and manner of one who has just returned from a journey of many years and many lands, he sighed sentimentally and said, in a recondite tone:
"Well, I see you have the same old cat."

DAN GROSVENOR SAYS:

"Peruna is an Excellent Spring Catarrh Remedy---I am as Well as Ever."

HON. DAN A. GROSVENOR, OF THE FAMOUS OHIO FAMILY.

Hon. Dan A. Grosvenor, Deputy Auditor for the War Department, in a letter written from Washington, D. C., says:

"Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from one bottle of Peruna. One week has brought wonderful changes and I am now as well as ever. Besides being one of the very best spring tonics it is an excellent catarrh remedy."—

DAN A. GROSVENOR.

In a recent letter he says:

"I consider Peruna really more meritorious than I did when I wrote you last. I receive numerous letters from acquaintances all over the country asking me if my certificate is genuine. I invariably answer, yes."—Dan A. Grosvenor.

A County Commissioner's Letter.
Hon. John Williams, County Commissioner, of 517 West Second street, Duluth, Minn., says the following in regard to Peruna:

"As a remedy for catarrh I can cheerfully recommend Peruna. I know what it is to suffer from that terrible disease and I feel that it is my duty to speak a good word for the tonic that brought me immediate relief. Peruna cured me of a bad case of catarrh and I know it will cure any other sufferer from that disease."—John Williams.

Miss Mattie L. Guild, President Illinois Young People's Christian Temperance Union, in a recent letter from Chicago, Ill., says:

"I doubt if Peruna has a rival in all the remedies recommended to-day for catarrh of the system. A remedy that will cure catarrh of the stomach will cure the same condition of the mucous membrane anywhere. I have found it the best remedy I have ever tried for catarrh, and believing it worthy my endorsement I gladly accord it."—Mattie L. Guild.

A Congressman's Letter.
Hon. W. P. Brownlow, Congressman from Tennessee, writes from Washington, D. C., the following:

"I have suffered from catarrh of the stomach for several years, and for the past twelve months was in an exceedingly critical condition. My attention was called to your Peruna, and I began to use it, and my improvement was noticeable after the first three days. I have taken three bottles of the medicine and I feel satisfied that I am now almost, if not permanently, cured. In connection with the Peruna, I have used your Manalin for biliousness and torpid liver. I regard it as the best medicine for this purpose that I have ever used. Having been benefited so much myself, I give you this statement, that others may be likewise benefited."—W. P. Brownlow, M. C., Jonesboro, Tenn.

Mrs. Elmer Fleming, orator of Reservoir Council No. 108, Northwestern Legion of Honor, of Minneapolis, Minn., writes from 2535 Polk street, N. E.:

"I have been troubled all my life with catarrh in my head. I took Peruna for about three months, and now think I am permanently cured. I believe that for catarrh in all its forms Peruna is the medicine of the age. It cures when all other remedies fail. I can heartily recommend Peruna as a catarrh remedy."—Mrs. Elmer Fleming.

Treat Catarrh in Spring.
The spring is the time to treat catarrh. Cold, wet winter weather often retards a cure of catarrh. If a course of Peruna is taken during the early spring months the cure will be prompt and permanent. There can be no failures if Peruna is taken intelligently during the favorable weather of spring.

As a systematic catarrh remedy Peruna eradicates catarrh from the system wherever it may be located. It cures catarrh of the stomach or bowels with the same certainty as catarrh of the head.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Drowned In Victoria Arm

Body of Charles Hall Found Near the Craigflower Bridge.

Had Been Ill For Some Time and Talked of Self Destruction.

Craigflower was the scene of a sad fatality in the early hours of yesterday morning, a well known Victorian being the victim. Whether the drowning of Charles Hall was the result of an accident or not is a question which may never be cleared up, but low spirits and unsettled nerves, the result of a serious illness, together with some suggestions of self-destruction previously made by the poor fellow, are thought to give some grounds for the belief that the end was self-sought.

The unfortunate deceased was a tailor, carrying on a small repair business at a little shop on the south side of Fort street, near its junction with Blanchard. For a dozen years or more he has been in business here, and as a result of irregular habits has not been well for quite a long time. Temperate as a rule, he occasionally departed from the path of sobriety, with the result that his nervous system was badly shaken, and his physical state very weak.

For some days last month he was an inmate of the Jubilee hospital, which he left quite lately, and being still far from strong, was taken out to spend the period of convalescence at the old Puget Sound farm at Craigflower, now occupied by Mr. Joseph Knox. Each evening he is said to have been taking little walks, and when he did not return from the accustomed stroll on Friday afternoon, he became alarmed. At 10 o'clock a systematic search was undertaken and word sent into the city that he was missing.

All through the night the search was kept up, and it was not until 7 o'clock yesterday morning that Mr. Knox discovered the body of the unhappy man floating in the waters of the Arm just under the Craigflower bridge. Getting a boat, Mr. Knox resuscitated the body, and called up the provincial police, Sergeant Murray went out and found the remains, which were afterwards brought to town, and now lie in the undertaking parlors of Mr. Hanna on Douglas street.

Dr. Ernest Hall, who had been attending the deceased during his late illness, was communicated with, and after some consultation, it was decided that the case should be referred to Coroner Hart, by whom the inquest will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The deceased is said to have come here from Owen Sound, Ont., and was married. He leaves a wife but no children.

PROVINCIAL LEGISLATURE.

Monday's Order Paper Crowded With Bills, Notices and Amendments.

The orders of the day of the Legislative assembly for Monday consisted of sixteen pages, crowded with notices of new bills, resolutions, questions by members, amendments to bills, second readings, reports of committees, and the like. Fifty-one bills and thirty resolutions remain to be disposed of, and the estimates have not yet been reached. There is a list in this issue of the bills and resolutions which are to be introduced. A public meeting is to be held in the City hall on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, when the object of the Children's Aid will be explained, and a report of the work of the society for the past year will be presented. The meeting is open to the public and all interested in the protection of the children an earnest invitation is extended.

Four More Months.—At the provincial police court yesterday morning, James Miller, alias Tabin, the prisoner who broke the chain gang line and was recaptured, was brought out on trial upon the charge of assaulting Miller elected to be tried summarily and pleading guilty was sentenced to four months imprisonment with hard labor for the last three months which Miller has already been sentenced to serve, and which now amount to 20 months in the aggregate.

The previous sentences are seven months for stealing a piece of cloth valued at $30 from W. F. Wenz, a Chinese tailor, three months for the theft of an overcoat worth $8.50 from McDonald Bros., and six months for the theft of a bicycle from Andrew Wood when arrested in the first instance.

Returning Delegates.—Yesterday morning's Rosalie brought over a party of delegates to the triennial session of the Supreme court, L. O. F., which met some time ago in Los Angeles. The party are bound East. They came north by the overland route. Among the party are: Atwell Fleming, formerly of the London, Ont., a doctor; Mrs. Fleming, P. Bull, Toronto; Albert Brennan and Miss Brennan, of Hamilton; His Honor Judge Wedderburn, of Hamilton, N. B.; Mrs. James Sinclair, Toronto; W. H. Hunter and G. A. Harcourt, of Toronto; W. Wilkinson, of England, and John Reynolds, of Norway. They are staying at the Driad. They are the first of a number of Canadian delegates who preferred to return by this route rather than East via Oueland and Chicago. The Supreme court met at Los Angeles on April 29 and the following five days, and again at San Francisco. Representatives were in attendance from all parts of the world.

YOUNG DWYER RECOVERING.

Injured Sailor Will Be Taken to His Home in England, Thursday.

William Dwyer, the young sailor who was injured by a fall on the British ship Arcturion, at Portland, has recovered sufficiently to enable his mother to take him back to his home in England, and they will start Thursday morning for New York. The young man has hung to life with a grit that has won for him the admiration of everyone he has met, and in spite of the fact that his injuries were at first pronounced fatal, he is in better shape physically and mentally than he has been at any time since the accident happened. He will be accompanied on the trip by a physician and nurse, and no bad effects are expected from the trip.

Mrs. Dwyer, his mother, and Miss M. H. Crocker, of Victoria, have been at his bedside for many weeks, and their presence has had much to do with his gallant fight for life. It is probable that a return to his old home and friends will start him further on the road to recovery.

GOOD SERVANTS HARD TO SECURE

Hon. J. H. Turner Interviews Hon. Mrs. Joyce On Domestic Servant Question.

Hon. J. H. Turner, agent-general for British Columbia, writing to the Bureau of Provincial Information, from London, under date of April 25, says he attended the annual meeting of the British Women's Emigration association on the day previous. Lord Selborne presided, and the speakers were Lords Strathcona, Brassey, and Lennington, and Mr. Turner, who explained the necessities of British Columbia in the matter of domestic servants.

Hon. Mrs. Joyce, president of the association, informed Mr. Turner that she thought she could secure a good number of reliable girls of good character, if places were found for them in advance on suitable terms as to wages. She thought the minimum wage should be $15 a month, the employer to advance at least $50 of the passage money, a portion of which would be retained out of the monthly wages for a year, but to return the amount so retained at the end of the year. Wages of girls with good English and good character should be higher, say up to $25 a month, and good cooks up to $30.

Continuing, Mr. Turner says: "Mrs. Joyce is, however, desirous to introduce into British Columbia women of a somewhat higher class, such as daughters of business men, farmers, etc. There are establishments in England for these now, at which no servants are kept, all the work being done by these girls and they are there taught everything in the way of housekeeping. They go out in parties, and in Australia and Africa there are hostels for them, at which they live, going out daily to work and do other household work, but returning at night to the hostel. In addition to these, Mrs. Joyce is anxious to send out lady-helps; these, of course, would expect to live with the family. They would be very capable housekeepers, etc. This class, I told her, though not in my opinion, likely to suit, though it is possible that some families might not object to them. She says that one class of the latter class, namely, the English, are much liked in some countries, as they look after the children and give early instruction. Any girls going out would be in charge of a matron. Mrs. and Mr. Skinner, Vancouver, who would arrange for their signing agreements, etc. "I may say that there is really much difficulty in getting servants here now. The A. B. C. company—Lyon & Co., and the Tea Table Co., have at least 2,500 employed, and there are lots of other similar companies. Then there are the new afternoon tea houses at the West End, dozens of them employing each 10 to 20 girls—and the innumerable small restaurants, railway stations, bars, etc. The girls, like these places, they, at some, get tips, and at all the larger places, have evenings out. Even those in houses now expect to go out frequently, and their wages are much higher than they were. Instead of being £10 to £18, a year, they run from £15 to £30, and cooks higher. In grand establishments, still higher and little work to do. The housemaid won't clean the kitchen, the kitchen maid won't clean the boots; another won't clean windows, and the cook is the lady of the kitchen, but won't clean it, so you can easily see the difficulty."

Col. John Marshall Grant, R.E., third son of Gen. Duncan Grant, Royal Artillery, died recently at Bournemouth, in his 80th year. He joined the army in 1842, and on the taking over of the administration of British Columbia from the Hudson's Bay company was selected to command the first troops sent out, a company of Royal Sappers and Miners. He carried out the trunk road from the coast to the Cariboo goldfields, and was employed for five years in the colony. He was gazetted lieutenant-colonel in 1865, and colonel in 1870, and afterwards served on the general staff of the army at headquarters as deputy-assistant.

MRS. HULDA JAKEMAN,

Wife of the President of the Elders of the Mormon Church, Salt Lake City, Utah, Recommends

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for Woman's Periodic Pains.

Surely the great volume of letters we are constantly publishing from women made strong and well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound must convince all women of the value of this famous medicine.

Does anyone suppose that the young wife of President Jakeman, whose portrait we are permitted to publish, would allow us this great privilege if she had not been so overjoyed at her own recovery that she now wants to be of service to her suffering sisters? No, indeed! No money can purchase such testimony, only a grateful heart full of a desire to help other sufferers could induce a young woman of such high social position to allow her name to be used in connection with any remedy.

How is it possible for us to make it plainer that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will positively help all sick women? All women are constituted alike, rich and poor, high and low, — all suffer from the same organic troubles. Surely, no one can wish to remain weak and sickly, discouraged with life and no hope for the future when proof is so unmistakable that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will cure monthly suffering — all womb and ovarian troubles and all the ills peculiar to women.

If there is anything in your case about which you would like special advice, write freely to Mrs. Pinkham. She can surely help you, for no person in America has such a wide experience in treating female ills as she has had. Address is Lynn, Mass.; her advice is free and always helpful.

MRS. HULDA JAKEMAN, of Salt Lake City.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Before I knew of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I dreaded the approach of the time for my menstrual period, as it would mean a couple of days in bed with intense pain and suffering. I was under the physicians care for over a year without any relief, when my attention was called to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound by several of our Mormon women who had been cured through its use. I began its systematic use and improved gradually in health, and after the use of six bottles my health was completely restored, and for over two years I have had neither ache or pain. You have a truly wonderful remedy for women. Very sincerely yours, MRS. HULDA JAKEMAN, Salt Lake City, Utah."

O, my sisters, I do pray you to profit by Mrs. Jakeman's experiences; just as surely as she was cured of the troubles enumerated in her letter, just so surely will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure every woman in the land who suffers from womb troubles, inflammation of the ovaries, kidney troubles, nervous excitability, and nervous prostration; remember that it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that is curing women, and don't allow any druggist to sell you anything else in its place.

$5000 REWARD.—We have deposited with the National City Bank of Lynn, Mass., which will be paid to any person who can find that the above testimonial letters are not genuine, or were published without obtaining the writer's special permission. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

THE STRAND HOTEL.
(Vancover.)

Has been remodelled. All newly furnished, one block from depot. European and American plan. Prices moderate. Wood Bros., proprietors.

Lewis Morrison's "Devil" Scarcely a Bell Boy.—Lewis Morrison himself will positively appear as Mephisto at the Victoria theatre on Tuesday evening, with the most magnificent scenery "Faust" has ever possessed. From the time that the advance agent of Lewis Morrison has seen to the plastering of billboards with the lurid paper showing his Satanic Majesty riding on a pillar of fire and cross lined the Devil is coming, the eyes of the lower class and more superstitious members of the Southern cities begin to bulge with awe, and many are the ludicrous incidents which have occurred to Lewis Morrison's impudently Mephisto. On one occasion, after retiring to his room at the hotel and repeatedly ringing the bell for ice-water without eliciting a response, he stepped into the hallway and caught sight of the black figure of a bell-boy nudging up in the adjoining doorway. "Come here, I want you," I've been looking for you for half an hour," roared the actor angrily. "Foh me, sub, oh Lawd, I ain't do nothing. I seen you at de show, sub. Please, sub, don't you scold me, my boy was so evidently terrified that Morrison took pains to set him at ease, and succeeded in drawing him into a conversation, which revealed the fact that Morrison's effects of the lurid stage presentation of Hades, which terminates with a rain of fire, were responsible for his long wait. Not a colored boy in the hall would answer the bell: "de debble" was rising. "What was just one thing about that place you was in dat ticked, sub, to deff sub." "What was that?" inquired the actor. "Dere wasn't a pick-uping or a nigger or any kind down dere where you was, sub."

STATESMANSHIP.

"Brownlow," said Representative Slaydon, of Texas, to his Tennessee colleague, "I have a little bill here for which I want 'All right,'" said Brownlow, promptly. "You shall have it."

"But let me tell you what the bill is for," said Slaydon.

"That's not necessary," replied Brownlow. "It asks for an appropriation?"

"Yes."

"Then I'm for it."

THE KIDNEY AND THE SKIN.

In the spring the kidneys have much to do. If they are weak or torpid, they will not do it well, and the skin will be pimply or blotchy. That is telling the story in a few words.

Hood's Sarsaparilla strengthens and stimulates the kidneys, cures and prevents pimples, blotches and all cutaneous eruptions. Don't fail to take it. Buy a bottle today.

The Return of The Sealers

Schooner Otto Reaches Port and Several of Her Companions Expected.

Ballachulish Arrives Safe in Liverpool With Salmon—Pacific Cable.

The sealing schooner Otto, which left Kyauptot with the sealers Arietis and Penelope, reached port yesterday morning with 116 skins. But three or four vessels of the fleet are now looked for, the schooners which had Indian crews and the schooners which took out white crews will in all probability go across to the Copper islands to complete the season. The schooners which are expected from the coast are the Hattie, Capt. D. Rand, Capt. Seale, and Sadie Turner, Capt. Moorhouse. These vessels all went well north after the seal birds, while those which have reached port did not go further north than the extreme point of Vancouver Island. As steamers arriving from the northward have reported sighting large numbers of seals, the company is hopeful that the schooners which went to the Fairweather grounds will have good catches. The white schooners which worked to the northward were the Oscar and Hattie, Capt. Blackstad, which has a crew of 21 white men; City of San Diego, Capt. Folger, which has 21 white men; Casco, Capt. Munro, with 21 whites; Sancy Lass, Capt. Gillen, with 18 whites, and the little South Bend, Capt. Cole, with 14 whites. All these vessels are expected to have fair catches. The Japan fleet includes the schooners, Director, Florence M. Smith, Triumph, Geneva, Dora Siewerd, and Carlotta G. Cox, carrying 138 white men.

According to the Japanese papers received by the steamer Tartar, the sealers are doing well off the Korean coast. The Japan Times says:

"A prosperous fur seal hunt is now reported to be going on off the port of Shoho, Hamgyongdo, Korea. Fifteen vessels are at present engaged in the hunt, of which eight are Japanese vessels, including the Hoko Maru, which is the Hoko Gikai association, while others are English. The Hoko Maru is said to have caught 30 in three days."

The catch of 21 of the fleet has been given to date, and 20 schooners are in port. Unless the schooner which is heard from do much better than those which have arrived, the average catch will be far below that of last season, when an average catch of 226 skins to the schooner was made. The catch of the 21 schooners which have arrived, including the C. D. Rand, which is at Quatsino, amounts to 2,875 skins, an average of about 137 skins to the schooner, 80 skins to the vessel less than was taken last year. The cause of the falling off in the catch was not due to any decrease in the seal herd, but to the seal were seen, but the weather was so bad that the hunting days were so few and far between that the hunters could not get them. Some of the schooners had but two lowering days during the stormy month of February, and not many more during March.

THE SAILERS.

Another salmon ship has arrived home. The Ballachulish, which sailed with 84,198 cases of salmon the day following the heavy gale in which the Condor and Mattoewan went down, passed Browhead on May 9, bound for Liverpool. Like others of the salmon fleet, the Ballachulish made a long passage. She occupied 151 days to Browhead.

The bark Hesper, which sailed from Hastings mills on November 30, with lumber for Fremantle, arrived at her destination on Monday. The Hesper, as will be remembered, put into Honolulu on January 1 in a leaking condition, and after being repaired there, sailed again for the Australian port on February 15.

Other ships have been added to the fleet which are bound to this port. The British bark Edgelyde, which is said to have been taken up to load salmon, left Port Natal for the Royal Roads on Saturday last, May 3. The schooner Spots and the Chilean bark Lake Lemna are not on berth at Iquique for this port, but are bound for London.

The cargo-laden ship Kate Thomas, which left Liverpool 143 days ago with general cargo, including heavy shipments of tin plate and salt, is looked for at any time.

COLONIA SAILS.

Cable-laying Steamer Starts for This City With Pacific Cable.

The cable-laying steamer Colonia sailed from Shields on Wednesday for Victoria with the cable on board which is to be laid from Bamfield Creek, on the West Coast of Vancouver Island, and adjacent to this city, to Fanning Island, in the far away Pacific, to which place the cable-laying steamer is now working at the rate of 8 knots in every 24 hours. The Colonia, which was specially built for the work of laying the cable, is a large and powerful vessel. Her description has been given in detail in these columns. She will steam around the Horn to Victoria, and will proceed from here to Bamfield Creek, to commence her work.

THE C. S. BEMENT SOLD.

Well Known Vessel Passes Into Hands of G. W. Hume.

Pacific Coast shipowners have been gradually adding to their fleets of sailing vessels until they have secured about all of the wooden square-riggers of any importance that are afloat under the American flag. They are now after the iron ships, and as they are few in number, they will soon have them all making use of San Francisco as a home port. The San Francisco for nearly two years, and is making regular trips between the Bay City and Honolulu, and now George Hume, of San Francisco, has bought the Clarence E. Bement, and will sail her out of San Francisco. The Bement and Starbuck were built for the old clipper line, which Sutton & Beebe operated between New York, Philadelphia and Portland, and both of them were kept on this route for a number of years, until the railroads and the steamers put an end to the round-the-Horn trade for sailers. With them in this trade was the T. F. Oakes, which left her bones on the California coast a few years ago.

SOMETHING ABOUT FAITH CURES.

What a great variety of faith cures there are! Some have faith in so-called divine healers, others in certain doctors and still others in the medicines they use. Every person who has tested Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills has faith in them, but faith or no faith they cure just the same, for they act directly and specifically on the kidneys, liver and bowels, and make these organs healthy, active and vigorous. Judging from enormous demand for these pills there must be hosts of people that have faith in them.

The proprietor of a German manerie in Philadelphia cages kept together a lion, a tiger, a wolf and a lamb, which he labels, "The Happy Family."

When asked confidentially how long these animals have lived together he answered: "Ten months, but the lamb has to be renewed occasionally."

If you drink brandy, try Martell's Three Star.

THE INDIANS OF CANADA

A Problem of Educating to Gradually Educate and Elevate them.

Among the books in which the noble red man figures, that issued annually by the Department of Indian Affairs of the Canadian government is, in its matter-of-fact way, as interesting as any the romancists have given to the world. It is in agreement with the Montreal Gazette, with the more stirring volumes in one thing at least. It is that the Indian is regarded as a child in mind who has to be educated up to the civilized man's standard. And the process is a slow one. Old Crowfoot, of the Blackfoot, one of the cleverest, and one of the most loyal of the Western tribesmen, was opposed to his people becoming owners of cattle, because their possession of herds, he said, would be followed by the closing of the government reservation. This reservation house and other necessary outbuildings, large orchard with 100 bearing fruit trees, lawn and tennis court; an ideal suburban residence. Apply to B. C. Land & Investment Agency, Limited, 40 Government Street.

Carey Castle Old and New.

With Historical Sketch of Sir James Douglas, the First Lieutenant Governor of British Columbia.

The recent dispersal of the furnishings of the old colonial official residence and the progress already made on the new Carey Castle should make the following brief reference to the old as well as the new residences of interest.

The residence of the late Sir James Douglas, which stands on the rising ground overlooking James Bay, was originally built of squared timber. Sir James, whose portrait is here given, was governor of Vancouver Island from 1851 to 1864, and of the united province of British Columbia from 1858 to 1864. Sir James (then Mr.) Douglas succeeded Richard Blanshard as governor of Vancouver Island in 1851. During his first residence in Victoria Sir James resided within the Fort, but about forty years ago the residence, as shown in the photograph, and which still stands near the Parliament Buildings and south of Belleville street, was built, and there he continued to reside until his death on the 2nd of August, 1877. The old house was for years the social centre of the colony, and it stands today one of the few two storeys, will be a most imposing one, 20x25 feet, having at the end facing the entrance a large pressed brick hooded mantel, with an open fireplace capable of taking a whole cordwood stick at a time. This portion of the building will be paneled in oak 15 feet high, and will be lighted by a very ornate octagonal bay window over the main entrance. Corridors extend to right and left of this hall to a length of 46 feet each. These corridors will be a feature of the building, the entire length from either side of the hall being 114 feet, broken by handsome arches at every few yards will give a very imposing appearance to this part of the castle, and will in many respects duplicate the corridors of the Parliament Buildings.

At the rear of the entrance hall is the ball room, 75x50 feet, extending up two full storeys and having galleries along the sides. At the southern end of the ball room is a circular bay, having a fine view of the straits and Olympic mountains will be had. The banquet hall, to the left of the in the circular tower seen to the right in the picture, is located in the basement, having access to the lawn on the left. On the first floor are situated the sleeping apartments, eleven in number, with four bath-rooms. The attic will be divided as required. The present contracts represent about $14,000 and those who are capable of giving an expert opinion state that when the new Carey Castle is completed, the governors of British Columbia will have an official residence which will be a credit to the province and the Dominion at large.

Mr. S. MacLure, one of the architects, who drew the plans for the new building, is well known as a clever and successful artist, having planned and erected some of the finest residences in the province, notably a $80,000 mansion at Vancouver for Mr. Rodgers, the manager of the H. Sugar Refinery. Of Mr. F. M. Rattenbury, the supervising architect, nothing need be said; the Parliament Buildings at James Bay stand as a monument to his skill which will ever speak louder than words, and which have already given him a national reputation.

HISTORICAL SKETCH.

Sir James Douglas, K. C. B., was born in Lanarkshire, Scotland, August 15, 1803, and came of a good old family of Douglas's, inheriting their many sterling qualities. He was educated in a private school in his native shire and afterwards in Chester, receiving a good workable school education. His tutor was a French exile, a count of courtly men, who groomed the future Sir James Douglas in old school French to such a degree that after passing many years in the West, on his visit to Paris he was complimented on account of his general use of that language. One of the last words of counsel the old count gave him before leaving for America was to keep up his French as it would always be found useful, and he always did.

At the age of 16 he joined the North West Fur company's service and went straight out to Fort Vancouver Lake, where he was afterwards sent to Cumberland House in the far West, where, for a number of years, he acted as a clerk. Being a young man of sound physique, diligent application to his duties, and of studious habits, he gained the respect and confidence of his superiors and was soon a trusted servant of the company. When Sir George Simpson, the Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, which had absorbed the North West Fur company in 1821, went West on one of his visits, James Douglas attracted his attention, and when subsequently he went to Fort Vancouver and found Dr. McLaughlin overwhelmed with work, and in need of assistance, he recommended James Douglas to him as not only extremely competent, but one who could do three men's work.

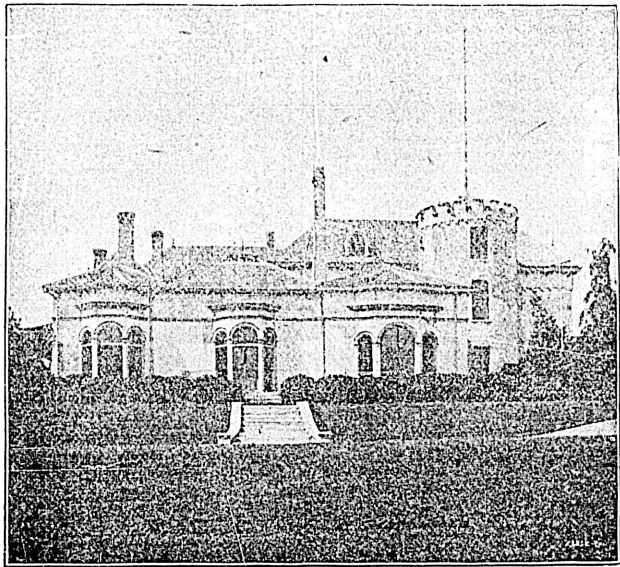

While in the Northwest, Douglas met his fate in America Connolly, daughter of William Connolly, chief factor at Fort Connolly, who a year after Douglas the population and his intimate knowledge of the country and its native tribes, his selection was the best possible under the circumstances. He held the joint position until 1853, when, owing to the launch of gold-seekers and the sudden large increase of population, it was considered in the public interests that he should relinquish his connection with the Hudson's Bay Company. He was appointed governor of the Mainland colony upon its organization, and was dual head of Vancouver Island and British Columbia until 1864, when he resigned and was knighted in recognition of his important services at a critical period of his country's history.

After becoming Sir James Douglas he took a trip to Europe, visiting England and Scotland and the principal points of interest on the continent. Upon his return to British Columbia he settled down to private life, conducting his large private business and devoting himself to studious routine. He was a man of strong domestic instinct, devoted to his family. He retained throughout life the accomplishments of his youth, acquired a

The salient features of Sir James Douglas' administration of public affairs were his energy, industry and enterprise. To his policy of road-building we owe much of the splendid communication we at present possess on Vancouver Island and on parts of the Mainland of British Columbia. One of the enterprises which he had in mind was a highway to Eastern Canada, which would bring British Columbia into direct contact with the commerce and social advantages of the larger centres, and the Dewdney trail, extending from New Westminster to the eastern boundary of the province, was a continuation of what he had in mind and he been permitted to have carried his policy fully into effect, and which afterwards became realized as a great transcontinental railway.

During his first residence on Vancouver Island he lived with his family within the fort, which was then the centre of all things on Vancouver Island. His official residence was afterwards the house which still stands near the Parliament Buildings south of Belleville street. Here he lived and entertained with dig-historical landmarks that remain to remind the present generation of the infancy days of the province.

CAREY CASTLE—BURNT IN 1890.

In 1859 G. H. Carey, then the attorney-general of the colony, built the attorney-general's office, which after much transmigration, became Carey Castle, on the top of the rocks on Belcher street, and in a situation which commands a view of mountain, sea and plain that for variety and grandeur is unrivalled anywhere on this green earth. This residence afterwards became the property of Mr. and Mrs. James, Lieutenant-Governor Kennedy was the first to occupy Carey Castle as an official residence. This was in the middle sixties. Additions and alterations were made to the buildings from time to time, until the whole nest of buildings went up in smoke on the night of 18th May, 1890, during the incumbency of the gubernatorial chair by Lieutenant-Governor McInnes.

Old Carey Castle during its time was the temporary abiding place of royalty, Princess Louise and the Marquis of Lorne, then governor-general of Canada, having spent some weeks there about the year 1880. Lord Dufferin, Lord Stanley and Lord Aberdeen each made Carey Castle their residence during their visits to this province as her late Majesty's representatives in the Dominion.

After the fire of 1890, the residence of the late A. A. Green, on Moss street, was leased as a temporary home for British Columbia's official, and His Honor Lieutenant-Governor Joly is at present still domiciled there.

THE NEW CAREY CASTLE.

The above reproduction, made from a sketch by the two architects, Messrs. S. MacLure and F. M. Rattenbury, and kindly loaned for the purpose of reproduction, will give a very correct idea of the appearance which Government House will present when completed. The contractors have already made good headway with the construction, the roof being about completed, and it is hoped that the principal work will be finished in the course of a month or so.

The main entrance, as shown in the illustration, faces north, and the state apartments having a southern outlook, will afford a view over the magnificent landscape lying below and south of the rock. The main building from East to West is 170 feet long, and the greatest width of this portion of the castle is 50 feet; from the centre of the main building a ball room extends out 48 feet beyond the line of the main building towards the south. This ball room is 56 feet wide, and will be an exceedingly handsome and imposing apartment. The building is two-story and attic, having a basement extending under the entire structure. The entrance hall will be constructed of cut stone, over the entrance porch being the coat-of-arms of the province, in a panel. The main entrance opens into a tiled vestibule 13x8 feet, having on the right the ladies' cloak room, and the gentlemen's on the opposite side.

The entrance hall, which extends up hall room, 20x45 feet, opens into that apartment by means of sliding doors. The windows of the banquet hall will be of leaded glass and very stately, while the beam ceiling will add to the dignity of the room. A hooded mantle piece occupies the end of the banquet hall, while on its southern side is a circular bay with balcony, the same as provided in the plan of the ball room. On the other side of the last-mentioned room is the drawing room, which also is provided with sliding doors, so that on state occasions the three apartments—the ball room, the banquet room and the drawing room—can be thrown into one magnificent reception room of most generous proportions.

Off the main corridor opens the library and the smoking room, the former to the right of the main entrance, and the latter to the left. The private entrance is at the west end of the corridor, the lieutenant-governor's private office being has removal to Fort Vancouver came down the Columbia with her father to join her husband. At Fort Vancouver Douglas met his assistant and chief confidante of Dr. McLaughlin, now known in Western history as the "Father of Oregon," until the headquarters of the Hudson's Bay Company was moved to Fort Victoria. During this period he went on various expeditions in the interests of the company to California, to Sitka in Alaska, and along the British Columbia coast. After the settlement of the boundary question he came to Victoria and brought his family.

Of his three sons, James W. Douglas was the only one to reach maturity. He was born in 1851 in the old fort, and was educated abroad. He was a member of the second parliament of British Columbia during the administration of Premier Elliott, of whom he was a supporter, and the daughter of whom he married. He died at an early age in 1883. His widow and two sons—James A. and John Douglas—who are the beneficiaries of the Douglas estate, survive him.

Prominent among the other descendants of Sir James Douglas are Dr. James D. Helmcken and H. Dallas Helmcken, K. C. M. P.

After the retirement of Dr. McLaughlin, Mr. Douglas succeeded him as chief representative in the Pacific Coast division, and he brought to the direction of the company's affairs those strong qualities of personal character, administrative ability, strict discipline and intimate experience of the country which rendered his services so valuable, not only as chief factor, but in governing and directing the colonies of Vancouver Island and British Columbia in the earlier and important stages of development. Richard Blanshard came out as governor of Vancouver Island in January, 1859, but finding his position a very unsatisfactory and disapproving the administration of Premier Elliott, of whom he was a supporter, and the daughter of whom he married. He died at an early age in 1883. His widow and two sons—James A. and John Douglas—who are the beneficiaries of the Douglas estate, survive him.

Off the main corridor opens the library and the smoking room, the former to the right of the main entrance, and the latter to the left. The private entrance is at the west end of the corridor, the lieutenant-governor's private office being his day, and in matters of business as well as social life was punctual, observant of the details of decorum, and exceedingly industrious. In brief, the qualifications which he brought to bear in life to his duties as chief factor and governor were education, keen intelligence, tactfulness, force of character, resourcefulness, systematic habits, dignity and moral rectitude. To these were added physical prowess and great bravery, constituting him as a whole one of the most striking figures of pioneer days.

from the people of Victoria and the residents of Vancouver Island and British Columbia. (One was a beautiful set of colonial woods, inlaid with gold. In presenting this the subscribers said: "We could conceive of no material more acceptable to you than various woods, the growth of the colony, of which you would be considered the founder, and over whose destinies you have presided for many years. It is adorned with the precious metal from the treasures of Caribon, which had laid dormant in the womb of time for innumerable years, but which your Excellency has rendered accessible to the sturdy miners by judicious government and opening up roads to the mines. May you enjoy a long life and health to your children and children's children, we hope they will not regret as the least honorable portion of their inheritance."

It was in this house also that Sir James breathed his last on the 2nd of August, 1877, and from which he was borne to his last resting place, followed by an immense concourse of sorrowing friends and citizens.

CHILD PUZZLED HIM.

Congressman Brownlow, of Tennessee, has a smart granddaughter, whose clever sayings are the delight of her parents. The other day she came to her grandfather with her face all smiles.

"What do you think of this?" she asked, "I saw something this morning running across the kitchen floor without any legs. What do you think it was?"

Mr. Brownlow studied for a while and gave up. "What was it?" he asked. "Water," said the youngster, triumphantly.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

Lieut. Lovett (sentimentally)—"I've come to say 'good-bye.' I've been ordered to the Philippines."

Miss Gladys—"How jolly! I'll be so interesting now that I'll read the lists of the killed and wounded."—Philadelphia Press.

"What real benefit," asked the disgruntled man, who objected to paying three dollars for a seat, "does the average mortal derive from our theatricals?"

"They tell him what kind of soap to use," answered the youth.—Chicago Post.

Stinkins—"They tell me your father asked me to a seat in the United States Senate. Thinkins—Yes, but I'm afraid the old man will never reach it. Stinkins—Why? Thinkins—He's only worth half a million and isn't a puglist.—Chicago Daily News.

THE MAN BELOW.

H. M. Tomlinson in London Leader.

"Then, at the last, we'll get to port an' hoist their baggage clear." The passengers wif' gloves an' canes—an' this is what I'll hear: "Well, thank ye for a pleasant voyage. The tender's comin' now. While I go testing follower-bolts, an' watch the skipper bow. They've words for everyone but me—shake hands wif' half the crew. Except the don't Scots engineer, the man they never know."

By the way, all marine engineers are not Maos. What has been learned in the science of Poplar and Caminetown, for instance, holds as firm as a Clyde-made nut. There are many thousand lives at sea depending on the knowledge and stress and strain of men below who get that knowledge at the far end of the Commercial Road, E. If the song to the fishes. What only concerns him is to wait for orders. With what he can remember of the line, night and the vacant seat it certainly seems strange that—there goes "Half-speed ahead"—"Stop"—"Full speed astern." The engines are racing reversed, and a puzzled gresser is anxiously watching his partner and falling gear, and the stokers are tumbling from the stoke-hole, followed by clouds of blistering steam. There is work to be done even now, though you are blind, and fumble to do it with ragged fingers. The ship may be saved, though you are not. Orders must be awaited, if the water is up to your knees. "Then—"all hands on deck!"—accepting those whose duty kept them where the worst was.

CIVILIZATION OF GERMANS

Some Trenchant Criticism By South African Paper on Late Actions.

From Cape Argus.

The Germans, and especially the Germans of Prussia, prize themselves on their innate superiority as a race; the clay of which they are made is immaculately pure, and the breath of their nostrils is twice refined. The schoolmaster on their side of the North Sea has thus excellent raw material to start with, and needs not that kindly commiseration for his lot which is his due when found dealing with the coarser products of the opposite island. By their birth and upbringing they consequently have no difficulty in posing as a specially cultured people, and the rest of Europe has made no violent effort to upset the pose. They make a claim also to being the most strictly intellectual nationality in the world; and non-German opinion subscribes to the view that they have at least done more to organize, guide, and supervise education than any other people. At no time is there any great danger of extravagant German pretensions being outdistanced by a more realistic and practical people, as evidenced in the case of the Germans; and it is commonly, though of course erroneously, believed that a certain islander, dressed in khaki or otherwise, can by a glance of pitying toleration promptly conceive a Continental or Colonial idea of the doctrine of "equality and fraternity" is not universally accepted. While, however, the like faults in other nations may be an effective safeguard against an overgrowth of vulgar brutishness in some particular one, it is fortunate that there exists another and a less unimpressive preventive. This is to be found in the natural law of change, which brings about cycles of seed-time and harvest even in things that seem purely spiritual. Like every other, the civilization of the Germans is not immune from the law of decay, and later be judged by its fruit; and as the German tree has recently been shedding an abundant crop we may with advantage pause for a moment to reflect on the produce which might reasonably have been expected, and on that which has actually come to hand.

A purely intellectual education, however elementary, is bound to urge the need for accuracy of statement, to insist that men and women must know before they are entitled to assert, and must either say so or be silent. Now, what evidence of this desire for accuracy, this caution in the case of uncertainty, is to be found in recent German treatment of English affairs? Have these virtues not been conspicuous by their absence? Have not the German pressmen acted simply as an uneducated mob, slandering the truth if it proved disagreeable to them, and violently asserting what was false because they wished it true? Again, the more beginnings of a moral education impress on the learner to be considerate of the feelings of others, to do as he would be done by, and to be doubly careful about the truth when the opposite course might lead to human pain. Have these fundamental virtues been in evidence in the treatment of the Germans in newspapers, or in the daily talk of nineteenth-century Germany? Is it not rather the case that so-called news was chosen because of its power to wound and insult, and that what was true and fair pictures were gloated over because they held up to scorn those who were respected and loved by the whole English people? Lastly, a really sound culture may be fairly expected to make a man moderate even in denunciation, reasonably choice in his language even when provoked, and prompt to eschew all that is foul to the eye or offensive to the mind. Have the men and women of German culture shown these qualities? Have they not in hundreds violated every rule of good taste, and allowed in the mire as enjoyably as any shum population could have done to whom culture was a name unknown?

These are unpleasant truths, and doubly painful to be said by any of those who have hitherto held Germany in respect and have lived on terms of friendship with numbers of its people. Their value disquieting doubts about the real value of German education, which for years has been held up as a model; and they suggest that a purely intellectual training is of the nature of a veneer which merely serves temporarily to hide the unsightly. Certain it is, that thousands of educated Germans have of recent months shown themselves devoid of all self-control, have lost any level-headedness they ever possessed, their intellects being tossed like corks on the sea of their passions, and their conduct with envy, malice, and all uncharitableness.

THE MAORIS.

New Zealand Natives to Form Volunteer Regiments.

A despatch from Wellington, New Zealand, reports that the Maoris recently held a great meeting, at which the chiefs delivered orations. They hoped their great father, the King, and their white mother, the Queen, would accept, through Mr. Seddon, their addresses in token of their devoted loyalty and love. None would rejoice more than they on Coronation Day.

Mr. Seddon announced that Maori volunteer corps were to be formed, and that in less than six months there would be 6,000 mounted Maori infantry. A better fighting force the King would not have within the Empire.

A native chief said: "Let our people room a short time in Africa. That would bring peace. The Pakeha (white men) are afraid to hurt the Boers. We in days gone by never gave our enemies a second chance of hurting us. The Maoris are desirous of sending loyal and loving messages to the Prince and Princess of Wales, whose presence among them assuaged their grief for the loss of Queen Victoria."

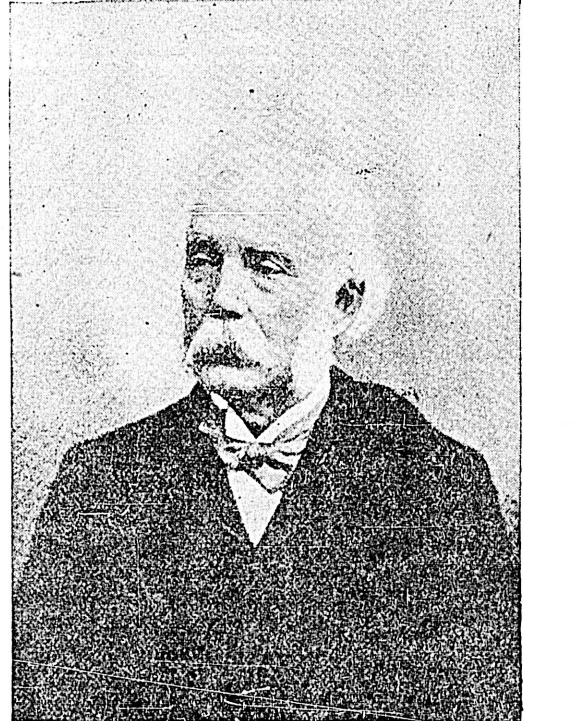

It transpired at the meeting that, according to Maori custom, the totem (wizards) had been consulted, and that the omens for the coronation and for the peace and happiness of both races were good.

Brown—"You never know the worth of a wife until she's gone, trouble befalls you."

Merrill—"Yes, it's so nice to lay the blame on her."

Barnes—"There goes Miner to deposit his vote. It's voting, by the way, is a case of carrying coals to Newcastle."

Howes—"In what way, please?" Barnes—"Why, it is only a slick going to the polls."

GENERAL VIEW OF ALBION IRON WORKS.

inal Albion Iron Works was established in San Francisco in 1860, or thereabouts. At all events, in 1862 Mr. Spratt, who owned the establishment, although doing a big business in San Francisco, made up his mind to join in the rush to this country, which was then at its height, owing to the discovery of the rich Cariboo mines. With Mr. Spratt came Mr. J. Madden, who had just served his apprenticeship, and Mr. Madden has been connected with the Albion Iron Works continuously to the present day. From 1862 to 1865 Mr. Spratt had associated with him John Kremer, an old-time Victorian who afterwards came to the mainland and grew very wealthy as a cattle planter. In 1885 the Albion Iron Works Company was formed, Mr. Spratt retaining his line of coast coast steamers and the whole property on the mainland. The plant of the Albion Iron Works Co. in this city is a very extensive one, occupying the entire block bounded by Store, Discovery, Government and Chatham streets, beside a large house shop across Chatham street, which runs through to Herald, and a steam-making plant quite an institution in itself, which will be referred to separately.

As would be expected, the plant which is scattered over this large area is most complete and modern, and capable of handling any and all work in the iron foundry and engineering line, no matter how large, that is likely to be required in this province for many a long day. Included in the Victoria establishment—for the company have another large concern at Vancouver—are three machine shops, a large and particularly well equipped foundry, pattern shop fitted with the most modern tools, smith's shop, the steam hammer—one of which is the largest in the province and capable of dealing with all the heaviest forgings which are shown here, measured 11½ feet and were the largest ever turned for a ship in British Columbia. Besides these the company have supplied boilers of a gigantic propeller for the steamer Commonwealth. This casting was one of the recently big items handled by the foundry and measured 17 feet in diamvery little smaller for the steamers Costa Rica, the Pilot and Wellington. The Albion Iron Works have their own special lines of engines, of which a large stock is always kept on hand ready for immediate delivery. A large boiler shop situated between Chatham and Herald streets is also fully equipped with punch, shearing, plate bending rolls and plate furnaces. In fact, the company is now in a position to deal with every variety of engineering works—marine, land and mining. The plant is lighted by electricity from the company's own power house.

In addition to their other works, the company have the best supplied store of brass goods, iron, steel, copper, brass, bolts, tubes, pipes and plates in the Northwest. During the year upwards of 2,000 tons of various materials are passed through the works in this city.

The following taken from the Colonist at the time the huge shipment of stoves here illustrated was made:

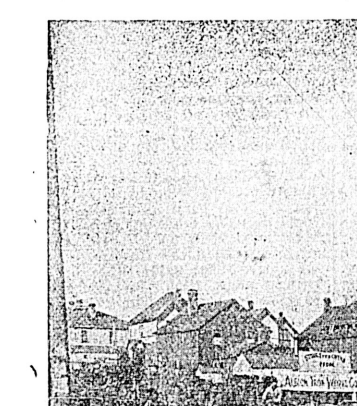

Fifteen dry loads of stoves—fifty-nine tons, actual weight—were the unusual procession which passed down Government street on Thursday last, and which the photographer has here pictured as the long line was about to leave the Albion Iron Works Co.'s factory. The stoves, as has already been mentioned a few days ago, are to fill a "rush" order received from the Imperial authorities, and are consigned to the officer commanding the troops at Shanghai. They number two hundred, and the facilities of the plant concern to handle such large orders may be judged when it is stated that the consignment was ready three days ahead of the time allowed, but six days having been consumed in preparing the shipment. Now is this all, for Mr. R. B. Seaton, the energetic manager of the works, states that his company could undertake this order in a few days. The stoves go for and to the Orient by steamship, and are intended for warming the winter quarters of the British army in China—beating the record for the pattern ordered. In addition to the stoves there were 400 pipes and 4,200 feet of pipe, the whole being packed in 217 crates.

As showing the vast dimensions of this branch of the business of the Albion company, it may be mentioned that they carry constantly on hand at least 1,000 stoves of all kinds and patterns, and a visit to their show rooms on Store street and Chatham street will amply repay the trouble. This department is under the side to be required in this neighborhood, two boiler shops and a foundry. The three machine shops are fitted with upwards of 40 different machines and machine tools, including a very large lathe, of sufficient size to turn the biggest wheels, shafts to be found in any vessel in this part of the world, and at the same time capable of doing the smallest work for brass finishers, planing machines, boring machines, facing lathes, slotting machines, and machines to do all kinds of work in iron and which handle and cut iron as if it were so much cheese.

personal superintendence of Mr. Thos. Wood, whose seventeen years experience is sufficient guarantee that all the work in his branch of the establishment is strictly first-class. The growth of the store business has been astonishing, and is evidence that the home-made article is winning a deservedly high place in the public estimation. During the past three years the turn over in Mr. Wood's department has quadrupled and, to come down to still more recent events, showing the trend of the sympathies of the provincial housekeeper, over 60 stoves and ranges were sold last week up to all parts of the province and the far North—Dawson being a particularly good customer of the local store industry. Through the store factory is a very interesting hour's work, and the thousand and one different processes and articles which go to make up the ton, ensemble of the majestic looking finished article may be inspected and seen when in the grade—right from the prosaic looking "pig" up to the highly finished, nickel fittings. All are made right on the spot. During this year 12 new patterns of ranges have been added, and yesterday a huge "French range" for a Vancouver hotel was being made ready for shipment. These ranges are made in all sizes, one which was supplied to the enterprising proprietor of the Pemberton hotel, being capable of cooking for a whole battalion at a time. So for this year the turn-over represents over 1,000 stoves, while the output exceeds 1,200. All the most modern machinery is installed, and the stoves, ranges, grates and feeders produced are of the very best and strictly up-to-date in all particulars. Silver, nickel, brass and copper plating are done.

THE WESTWARD STREAM.

How the Tide of Immigration Is Turned Towards the Dominion.

From the Westminister.
For years the people of Canada were chagrined at the slowness in the growth of our population. The changes were rung on the exodus from our shores, and it was to many a source of humiliation that the most progressive and energetic of our young people found their way to the South to earn the life of the neighboring republic. Men of prophetic vision assumed as that in the great Canadian West there was a land of limitless resources, but in many cases their messages were unheeded, and our great heritage lay undeveloped, while the struggle for existence in the congested centres of population grew more intense. There were those in our Eastern provinces who were awake to our possibilities, and who, having braved the experience of a life of pioneer life, are now in comfort and affluence, reaping the reward of the days of toil. But for years the great possibilities of Western Canada did not impress the imagination of the middle classes of the motherland. The conception of the great prairies of the West as a region of blizzards and frozen temperatures was hard to eradicate, and the class that would have been hailed with joy did not flock towards our shores. The foreigners who have found homes in the Canadian West have not been regarded as the ideal class of settlers, and for years the advance in population has not been equal to the expectations of those who knew how great are the advantages offered to the industrious toiler.

And yet during the past twenty years a wonderful transformation has taken place in Western Canada. Vast stretches of prairie have been transformed into wheat fields and cattle ranges; cities and towns and villages have sprung up as by magic; the great mineral resources of the farther West are being developed; political, educational and religious institutions have been founded, and no man who has an eye to see can view the great new land of the West without be impressed with its creditable achievements and its splendid possibilities.

And it is evident, too, to the most superficial observer that for Western Canada the tide has turned. There has been a concentration of circumstances which has brought Canada to the attention of the world, and the eyes of men have been turned toward the West as never before. A steady stream of settlers from the motherland—men and women of our own blood and posterity and regions—deals is spreading out over the great prairie lands and will make a most desirable class of citizens. On Thursday last week one thousand Scotch and English and Irish settlers left Liverpool, and the supply from that source will be far in excess of any year in the history of the country. Last year thousands of American citizens settled in the Edmonton district and along the "100" line, and owing to the activity of shrewd American colonization companies, the influx this year will be far in excess of last year. One thousand Mormons are reported to have left Utah last week to settle in Southern Alberta to add to the already prosperous Mormon colony in that district, and to build up a great beet sugar industry with the new town of Raymond as nucleus. It is as yet too early in the season for the great stream of foreign immigration, but there is no doubt that it will be larger than ever before. And during the past year the Eastern provinces were filled by the very best class of immigration agents—men and women who had prospered in the West, and in every quarter of the Old Land, told of the prizes within reach of the honest toiler. The tide has turned for Canada, and the Canadian settlers from the older provinces, from the United States, from the British Isles and from foreign lands is flowing steadily in and spreading over the vast stretches which are never too welcome and reward all who are willing to toil.

A candidate for the position of keeper in a city menagerie was asked the other day, when undergoing the usual examination, "If the prize lion sprang his ankle, would you do to give him relief?" "I'd get some liniment," was the answer, "and put my hand in between the iron bars and put the liniment gently on the lion's ankle, and then I'd get some more added in parenthesis, 'that I've got a wooden arm.'"

An applicant, shaming at appointment as police matron, was asked what were her special qualifications for the place. "I've been a widow off and on for twenty years," she answered.

The formation of clerks' union is the first chapter in self-help—the start to better things. At next Monday night's meeting the attendance promises to be large and a definite mode of procedure adopted. The need is felt of a means to check further unreasonable demands being made upon this class of workers, and in some instances to ameliorate existing conditions. There are clerks who are treated fairly and there are clerks who are not treated fairly. The association will be in a position to enlighten the public on matters they are ignorant of, and this, too, without injury to the individual member. With a strong association of their own, backed by the 27 other unions and the Trades and Labor Council, a uniform hour of closing may be brought about, which will prove a hardship only on those who take advantage of their competitors by working their employees long hours. The public might be inconvenienced, but only for a time. They would soon become accustomed to making their purchases by daylight.

On Wednesday night the Trades and Labor Council will receive and consider the report of their delegate to the Kamloops convention. There are only two courses to follow. To enter into politics as a trades council will necessitate the matter being referred to a referendum vote of the members of the unions composing the council; that is, one course. The other is for the council to request some of its members to take the initiative in organizing a branch of the Provincial Progressive party in Victoria. The latter is the better way of dealing with the matter.

Accompanied by the local members of the legislature, a deputation of trade unionists interviewed the provincial government, on Wednesday, and asked that the Workmen's Compensation Act, now in committee, be favorably considered. That provision should be made for compensation for injuries, the result of accident, is not questioned, but some count of his employer holding views of another kind. It makes men timid and even servile. The dread of consequences prompts men to stifle their honest convictions and become puppets to the man who has it in his power not alone to discharge him from his employment, but to blacklist him with other employers. When a man sells his labor it should not be necessary for him to throw in his honor and manhood to boot. Trades union would have it otherwise, and otherwise it should be.

The measure introduced in the Dominion House by the Minister of Labor, if it becomes law, would prevent strikes on railway and tramway. It differentiates between the employees and companies must be settled by conciliation, the matter must be arbitrated. The measure will not be pushed this session, but will be printed and circulated throughout the country. It provides for the appointment of seven provincial boards—one in each province—to deal with railways having provincial charters; and a Dominion board to deal with those operating under Dominion charters, where the difficulty to be adjusted extends beyond any one province.

The provincial boards are to comprise three members each—one elected by the railways, one by the men, and the third by the two arbitrators so elected; or, in case of a dispute as to the third arbitrator, he will be appointed by the governor-in-council. In this way there will be seven local boards, of whom seven men will be elected by the railways, seven by the men, and seven appointed by the government. The Dominion board will comprise five members, two elected by the railways, two by the men, and the fifth to be chosen by the four arbitrators so elected; or, in default of that, to be appointed by the governor-in-council. The members are to hold office for three years. The elected members are to be chosen by the railways, who are given as many votes as each has employees, and each employee has a vote. Every award of the board is enforceable, and another award displaces it, and the decisions of the arbitration board are not reversible by the courts.

The executive committee of the Bader, Malins and Co. Ship Builders' society, or their monthly report, say in reference to the recent decision in the C. L. case: "Legal decision upon legal decision comes with astonishing rapidity and goes to show how careful and discreet everyone should be in conducting trade union work. The fullest discretion must be used until the time arrives to get the trade unionists' position properly defined. We want no favor, but we do want to be put upon an actual equality and not a surface equality. If employers can with impunity single out a workman and thus injure him by preventing him from obtaining employment, then surely they should be equally liable with the trade union official who does similar acts."

A number of writers discuss the concentration of wealth from different points of view, in a series of articles in last week's New York Independent. The list of contributors to the symposium includes such names as Carroll D. Wright, Charles R. Flint, Russell Sage, James J. Hill, W. G. Sumner, John R. Commons, John D. Brown, Ernest H. Crosby, John B. Clark, W. J. Bryan and Henry D. Lloyd, and, needless to say, there is some variety in the conclusions presented. Commissioner Wright, who deals with the distribution of wealth thinks that the dangers of concentrated wealth are not the main danger of the state socialism that will naturally develop as governments answer to private monopoly; and Mr. Lloyd discerns evidence of progress toward a socialistic regime. Mr. Bryan declares that the main purpose and inevitable consequence of the present concentration of wealth is monopoly, while Professor Clark seems to see as the outcome of the present tendencies a very frank and vigorous expression of which, perhaps, Professor Sumner furnishes the most striking examples.

Within the past thirty days or so it is probable that upwards of 100,000 workmen in divers branches of industry, particularly in the building and textile trades, have struck for higher wages, shorter hours, or the redress of other real or fancied grievances. These disturbances, together with doubt as to the probable outcome of the anthracite coal miners' discussion, coupled with uncertainty regarding the attitude of operators toward the demands of the blast furnace workers and smelters, make for considerable unrest in labor circles. But at the same time it must be noted that a feature of strikes declared within the past month is that they last for but a short time, the general tendency being to compromise in the incipient stages, and the advantages generally remaining with the workmen. Indeed, the activity now prevalent in practically all lines makes any other course well nigh impossible.—Broadstreet.

Chicago labor unions have decided to go into politics. By a referendum vote 233 unions have authorized the step. It is claimed that united labor can poll 100,000 votes, enough to elect its candidates.

A notice of motion is on the minutes of the Vancouver Trades and Labor Council to amend the by-laws so as to prevent any person acting as a delegate for a trade he is not actually working at. The by-laws of the Victoria Trades and Labor Council have always contained a clause of this nature, the principle of which has never been questioned. There may be instances where the enforcement of the law would serve no good purpose, yet such instances are rare.

of the members of the government are of opinion that the employees should share, if not entirely bear, the cost of insurance. The argument is used that if the act passes, wages must be reduced to meet the expense of carrying on business. This is the old stock argument, and one, no doubt, the worker is prepared to take chances on. The misson of one man might injure or cause death to nine other men, and the employer stands liable to pay compensation for the nine. At present the neglect of an employer may be the cause of injury or death, and he is liable, but has never been held as such by a workman? State insurance is undoubtedly preferable to a Compensation Act. This would mean that the state the employer and the employee would contribute. Meantime, the Compensation Act is what the workers are asking for.

From the viewpoint of statistics, concludes that the assertion that the rich are growing richer and the poor poorer is not sustained, but that, on the contrary, there has been during the last four decades an increased distribution of property among the smaller holders. Mr. Flint holds that industrial consolidation is not, but following the same natural law as that under which water seeks its level, and Mr. Sage declares that to rail against the accumulation of wealth is to rail against the decrees of justice. Mr. Hill the consolidation of wealth means simply the effective organization of effort. Professor Sumner, who expresses himself in a very radical way, sees in great industrial organizations phenomena of growth. "Industry," he declares, "never can be democratic so long as men differ in productive power and in industrial virtue." Professor Commons sees danger in the use by concentrated wealth of special legal privileges, and declares that the concentration of capital makes labor relatively weaker and capital stronger.
